Maths*

Draw a caterpillar add pom poms, buttons or bottle tops to make a repeating pattern. Make them different lengths, can you count how many pompoms you have used?

Let's make a caterpillar number line using fingers prints. Draw a face next to each number and print the correct number.

Communication and Language

Can you pass on a whisper with your family about minibeasts?

Play I spy – Hide some fruit and vegetables around the house then describe them one at time and see if they find them.

The hungry caterpillar ate lots different foods can you remember what fruit the caterpillar ate? Can you remember on which day of week he ate them on? Roly poly rhyme-time*

Understanding the World

Investigating Minibeasts*

Can you find out about the life cycle of a caterpillar? Do you think there are any other creatures that change from looking like one thing and change into something else? This is called metamorphosis, like when the Hungry Caterpillar changed into a beautiful butterfly.

Messy fun, make mud and add minibeasts to it. Can you make some delicious fruit delights such as a kebabs or even a fruit pizza, or even this salad caterpillar?

Physical Development

Talk about what foods are good for your for body and help you to grow big and strong? What else do you need to to keep you body fit and healthy.

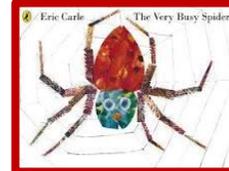

Use your body to make the different stages The Very Hungry Caterpillar went through- curl up small like the egg, wiggle like the caterpillar and stretch and fly like a butterfly.

Literacy

Read some other stories by the author Eric Carle, like The Very Busy Spider/ The Very Quiet Cricket.

Can you keep a food diary? Draw a picture of what you eat each day or your favourite meal and label it. Then you can read your writing back to your grown up. Can you find and sing some rhymes about minibeasts? Watch the story again, can you retell it to your family?

Expressive Art and Design

Apple printing make red and green prints to create a caterpillar.

Make a bubble caterpillar*

Make a 'blob and fold' butterfly or if you are really adventurous fold your paper and place some painted string in between to create a symmetrical pattern. Can you create your own finger puppet? (See example below.)
